Presentation Goals

Today you walk away with ...

- Understanding reasons why Student Led IEPs are a Good Idea?
- Specific Formats for Developing Student Led IEPs
- Tips on Including Students at All Developmental and Age Levels in Meaningful IEP Participation or Facilitation
- Resources for Further Study

Assumptions

Presume Competence about Student Abilities

Students at ALL Developmental Levels have the Ability to Learn about Themselves and Communicate Something about Themselves

Group Activity

Why Do You Think Student Led IEPs are a Good Idea?

Type answers in question / chat box.

Introduction to Self Directed IEPs

- Outcomes and Research Base
- Definitions

Outcomes of Self Directed IEPs

- Student Better Understands Her / His Abilities, Disability, and Needs
- Student is Able to Discuss Needed Accommodations to Others and in Groups
- Preparation for Disclosure in College and Career
- Student Point of View and Student Ownership is Focus of Meeting

Outcomes of Self Directed IEPs

- Student Focused
- Teaches Independence
- Language in the Student's Words
- Educators Learn More from Student's Point of View on Strengths, Needs, Triggers
- Positive!

Self Determination

The Terms Self Determination and Self Advocacy are Defined in Many Different Ways

What do they mean to you?

Self Determination

- Self Determination may Include . . .
 - Self Identification and Awareness
(how does student identify with disability / abilities)
 - Self Advocacy
(how/can student request accommodations, follow up on getting needs met, be assertive, negotiate)

Self Determination

- Self Determination may Include . . .
 - Ability to Take Control
(how does student make decisions, problem solve)
 - Self Direction
(how does student take responsibility, determine what it important, plan and set goals)

Research on Self Determination

- Self Determination has Shown to . . .
 - Improve academic skills
Konrad, Fowler, Walker, Test, & Wood, 2007
 - Improve employment and independent living
Martorell, Gutierrez-Rechanca, Pereda, & Ayuso-Mateos (2008)
 - Improve quality of life
Wehmeyer and Schwartz (1998)
- Research has Shown Students with Autism show Less Self Determination than Neurotypical Peers
Wehmeyer & Shogren, 2008

Resources and Considerations

Resources Used to Implement Self Directed IEPs

- Student Template
 - Template is in same order of IEP document
- Computer / Screen / Projector
- Preparation and Planning!

Student Considerations when Using Self Directed IEPs

- Consider Student's Communication Modes (Assistive Technology, etc...)
- Accommodate and Support for Student's Level of Anxiety

Formats / Examples of Student Led IEPs

- Powerpoint Templates
- Worksheets
 - Key Questions
 - Multiple Choice
 - CLOZE
- Summary of Performance (SoP)

Powerpoint Templates

Purpose of Student IEP PP Template . . .

- Allows Students to Present Key Information which is Part of IEP
- Information Aligns with "Formal" IEP which IEP Team Enters into the Actual IEP
- Customized to Individual Student
- In Student's Own Words

Keep it Positive!

Steps for Implementing Self Directed IEPs

Suggested Steps for Implementation

- Create Timeline
- Set up Meeting Time with Student
- Discuss Template (blank)
- Work with Student to Fill In Template
 - Discuss the “legal” and “teacher” language

Suggested Steps for Implementation

- Student Brings Home Parent Concerns Form and Gets Information from Parents
- Student can Customize Presentation
- Student Presents at IEP Meeting
- After the First Year the Presentation is Revised and Student Adds More Information and Customization
